Characteristics

Mamadou Koné is known for his stamina, defensive skills, passing ability and long throw-ins. He can cover the entire flank on his own with phenomenal speed and physical strength. A tireless hard-working athlete with explosive pace that can race up and down while adapting his approach as the game dictates. Koné blends the continuous support to attacking moves while nurturing the ability of tracking-back all mixed with his passing expertise and successful tackling.

Koné experiences a thriving relationship between the defensive and offensive thirds contributing regularly with constant pressing, one-two passes, displaying higher ratio of balls played forward but as well as organizing and dictating tempo-of-play with a couple of passes backwards or laterally.

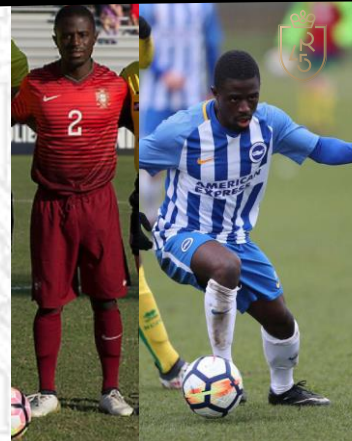

Koné displays an effective first touch & ball control combined with highly intuitive vision-of-play. Additionally, he benefits from a great level of anticipation which also enables his commendable interceptions.

The mentality of this great captain is another of his strengths complemented with leadership skills, emotional intelligence and consistency. Koné has captained not just the mighty Benfica but as well the national team of Portugal. His weaknesses are solvable as he continues to solidify his identity alongside with a comprehensive tactical awareness.

Koné's stamina, energy, dynamism and tenacity combined with a focused mind-set, discipline, overlapping forward runs down the flanks provide not just width but also depth in most designated areas fitting the perfect plans of any manager. Definitely a role-model, which strengthens every squad with his charisma – On the field, a winner, an icon in potential, but surely an inspiration outside of it, embodying the spirit of the game.
